Aldermen approve new flood zone ordinance

BY GEOFF BELCHER

Mayor Tommy Longo and the Waveland Board of Aldermen did something

Tuesday evening they haven't seemed to be able to do since Katrina struck the Coast on Aug. 29 – they made people happy. The board got a hearty round of applause during a workshop meeting when they approved the city's new Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance, clearing the way – finally – for rebuilding.

"We can't adopt an ordinance that's going to protect you from a Katrina," Longo said, but the new plan will help keep flood insurance rates as low as possible.

A Farewell, with Thanks

The New Waveland Cafe and Bastrop Ministry Alliance's Free Market close operations with a "Thanks-for-giving" Parade

With gratitude to the citizens of Hancock County, the New Waveland Cafe, the Bastrop Ministry Alliance, and all other participating organizations would like to extend an invitation to all of Hancock County to join them for a Thanksgiving celebration.

Join the "thanks-for-giving" parade on Saturday, November 26, featuring "floats" and a lively procession of volunteer groups, local agencies, businesses, and residents. The parade route will begin at the Save-a-Center parking lot (at the intersection of Highway 90 and 603) at 1 p.m. The parade route will proceed along the north lanes of Highway 90 and will end at the Fred's Parking lot (across from the police station on Highway 90) at 2 p.m., followed by a party at the New Waveland Cafe, with food, drink, and music open to the public.

Sandy Molenhouse of International Aid said, "This will be a celebration of generosity and hospitality—of the generosity of all volunteers here, and of the hospitality of Hancock County."

All organizations, businesses, and residents are welcome and encouraged to be a part of the parade. Please contact Aaron Funk at (228) 224-

1253 to get involved. Closing of the New Waveland Cafe

The New Waveland Cafe will run on an altered schedule for Thanksgiving (Nov. 24) and the following Friday and Saturday (Nov. 25 and 26). There will be two meals daily: a brunch served from 9-11 a.m. and a dinner served from 4-6 p.m.

The last day of operation is Saturday, November 26.

"It has been a true pleasure serving the great people of Hancock County," says Aaron Funk, a volunteer at the New Waveland Cafe. "I have been thoroughly surprised by the warmth and determination of the community, and without their good spirits we would not have been able to work so hard."

Arriving only ten days after the hurricane's land-fall, the New Waveland Cafe's open-air kitchen has been dishing out three hot meals, seven days a week to Hancock County residents for nearly three months straight. The all-volunteer crew from all over the country is proud to be a part of Hancock County's recovery and wishes the best to the community.

Closing of the Bastrop Ministry Alliance Free Market

The last day of operation is Thanksgiving Day (Nov. 24). All residents are encouraged to come help themselves to as many supplies as needed on that day.

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor meets with Hancock County residents Tuesday at the Bay St. Louis Train Depot to hear their concerns about the county's recovery efforts.

Insurance woes top topic at Taylor meet

BY DWAYNE BREMER
Staff Writer

Bay St. Louis residents got a chance to meet with Congressman Gene Taylor Monday night. Hundreds of people jammed into a small trailer set up at the Bay St. Louis Train Depot, while another 50 people stood outside in 45-degree weather to listen to what the congressman had to say.

"I am glad you are all here," Taylor said. "This is by far the biggest crowd I have had at one of these meetings. I have been begging my fellow congressmen to help out Mississippi for the past 80 days. I said on the floor of the House and I'll say it again, if we can take care of Iraqis then we can take care of Mississippi."

The main topic of concern from citizens was insurance. Questions ranged from the "wind vs. water debate", to people who were not required to have flood insurance, to insurance companies being broke and not paying claims.

Taylor explained that he has introduced a bill that would allow people who lived outside the flood plane and had wind insurance to purchase flood insurance. The bill calls for people to pay the past 10 years premium, and then they would be able to receive a claim for flood damage.

"I don't know if my bill will pass as it is written," Taylor said. "I would hope it would, but I believe that there may be some compromise. I have spoken with Sen. Thad Cochran, and he stated that he was going to help, but how I still don't know."

One man asked, "What if I had both flood and wind insurance, and the insurance company does not want to pay both?"

Taylor explained there is no federal regulation on insurance, and that all insurance concerns had to go through the state insurance commissioners office.

"Insurance companies and Major League Baseball are the only business in America that are now subject to our anti-trust laws," Taylor said. "I am sick and tired of the excuses used to abuse thousands of people in south Mississippi. If I had my way we would call it Natural Disaster insurance. I think there should be a national registry of child molesters and insurance company presidents."

Taylor told the crowd that information from the Navy would be released on Nov. 23, about how high the wind and water got during the storm and for how long it lasted.

The information will be on Taylor's website.

One man asked, "Can you send that to State Farm?" The comment brought a round of applause from the crowd.

A question was raised about if guidelines for recovery had come from the Florida storms of 2004. Taylor explained that most of the damage in Florida was done by wind, and that this disaster is like no other in American history. Taylor pointed to his speech on the House floor next week.

"We're sorry if we did not see the speech, but some of us don't have any television around here," said Stanley Beauregard.

The comment brought laughs and cheers.

Another area of concern was about time limits on FEMA trailers.

"How can we build as many homes as needed in 18 months?" a woman said. Taylor explained that extensions had to be requested by the governor and signed by the president. Taylor said he thinks that common sense will prevail when it comes time for extensions.

"This was an unprecedented storm, and everyone is going by normal model. Things like debris removal have already been extended, so I have a hunch that the 18 months may be extended if needed," Taylor said.

Taylor said he is aware of the rumor that the Mississippi Wind Storm pool is out of money. He said that the pool draws money from the insurance companies, and people would be paid for their claims.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas

We still have reason to give thanks

Today we celebrate Thanksgiving 2005. As we look around us, we see massive destruction.

Yet we still have much to be thankful for, most important we are survivors of the most destructive natural disaster in our nation's history.

The thousands who have come to help us rebuild our lives, friends we never would have known.

The thousands of meals offered since Katrina.

The large number of free Thanksgiving dinners being served today.

The millions of folks, many who never heard of Hancock County, Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Clermont Harbor, Lakeshore, Ansley, Pearlinton, Kiln, Diamondhead, etc., who donated so much through charities, churches, civic organizations. We have to be thankful for them.

Yes, we have much to give thanks for and much more to come.

Have you had a gnat attack yet?

Well, try raking your yard when the temperature is about 50 degrees.

The past several days have been miserable because of gnats.

I do not know how the critters received their name, but I do know they are all mouth and can make you miserable.

I sometimes wonder if Congress really know about the severe beating folks along the Gulf Coast took from Katrina.

Wouldn't it be great if there was a session held at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

Senators and congressmen could be flown into the John C. Stennis Airport, transported to the courthouse via Stennis Shuttle buses and an address could be given by Hancock County Historical Society executive director Charles Gray.

Charles could show photos of before and give a tour of after.

A crazy thought!

But...

Until next time.

Barbour's plan too naive

Three months after Hurricane Katrina struck our Gulf Coast region with tremendous destructive force of wind and water on a scale this nation has never experienced, there were few answers to the question: "Where do we go from here?"

Optimism--and hope--were virtually the only answers our state and local governmental leaders had to offer, and then with a note of uncertainty because of the immensity of the task facing them.

Several things we do know with relative certainty in Mississippi at this juncture after Katrina hit:

One is that life will not return to anywhere near normalcy for almost a quarter of the state's people in the foreseeable future; another is that the state's thriving gaming industry on the Gulf Coast that pumped millions of dollars into the state's economy and was a major source of tax revenue for coast towns and counties as well as the state is out of commission at least for two years.

Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour has proposed a $4.734 billion,

Eyes on Mississippi

by Bill Minor

no-tax-hike state budget for FY2007 with an ambitious slogan, "We will rebuild a Mississippi that exceeds anything we've ever known."

No knowledgeable state government observer, however, could find in his document enough substance, or fiscal wherewithal to fulfill Barbour's rosy promise of not only restoring what has been smashed, but to make it better.

Any realist here knows that the rebuilding and revitalization of Mississippi's Katrina-smashed infrastructure, and societal institutions, is a task requiring resources far beyond our state and local governments' ability, even if we adjusted our tax structures (as we should) to generate badly needed additional revenue.

Thus, we in Mississippi, and of course our hard-hit Louisiana/New Orleans neighbors, must look to Washington for billions of dollars of disaster recovery and rebuilding aid. No optimistic prospect there, however.

Katrina's huge recovery price tag lands on the doorstep of the White House at a time when the

How long must we keep living in tents?

Hurricane Katrina has devastated our home in Bay St. Louis. We currently are living in a tent without electricity or heat. We have had what was left of our home demolished at our own expense, and prepped the site with a well. The power lines are available, etc., per FEMA specifications. one seems to be able to give us any answers except to wait or reapply again. In the meanwhile, we have noticed many unemployed neighbors have received a trailer from FEMA. Is this a qualification for receiving housing assistance?

Much to be thankful for

BY BISHOP THOMAS RODI

The year was 1621. The place was Plymouth Colony in what today is Massachusetts. The year before 102 colonists had left the comforts of Europe and arrived to begin a new settlement in a strange new place. About one half would die during the winter of 1620-1621 from exposure and lack of food. During the summer of 1621 the colonists were able to grow some corn. There was not an abundance of food, but they hoped there would be enough to stave off starvation during the coming winter. History tells us that the colonists would continue to receive only half rations for at least another year. Yet in the midst of all their struggles they paused and gave thanks to God.

The year is 2005. The place is the Coast and Pine Belt of Mississippi. Three months ago Hurricane Katrina ravaged our beautiful communities taking from us homes, jobs, and tragically, loved ones. Some of our once familiar neighborhoods have been so damaged that they seem to be strange new places. During these past twelve weeks we have removed debris, repaired buildings, shared housing, generously given of what we have, and adjusted to most trying circumstances. Yet in the midst of all our struggles we pause and give thanks to God.

The experience of Katrina has been a devastating blow to many. For us as a diocese, and for many individuals, we have much less "stuff" to give thanks for this year than last year. In previous years we would often sit around the Thanksgiving dinner table giving thanks for the "stuff" we possess. This year is a little different for many, if not most. The dinner table may be a folding table with paper napkins, or a small table in a corner of the FEMA trailer, or for the first time, sitting with strangers at a communal dinner provided by a church group. The material blessings we enjoy today may be far less than last year. Nonetheless we feel gratitude for them, perhaps even more gratitude than when we had more material things in our lives.

But something deeper is present as well. We have grown in wisdom in these past four months. Perhaps our homes are gone or covered in blue. Maybe we are anxious about insurance coverage and the costs of rebuilding. The future may seem uncertain and intimidating. But we have grateful hearts, and we pause to give thanks. The reason why we can do this, simply put, is wisdom. We have indeed grown in these past weeks. Our losses and struggles have caused us to reflect upon what is truly important. It is not the "stuff" that is truly important. The "stuff" may be difficult to lose. Many have worked hard for the material things that have been lost and some items hold a strong emotional meaning. Nonetheless, wisdom tells us that what is truly important is God and others.

That is why our Thanksgiving table becomes a sacred place, whether in a house, trailer, tent, or church hall. It is where we gather with God and with others to remember the blessings we enjoy in the midst of struggle. It is where we praise God, thank God, and celebrate the gift of other people in our lives.

Thanksgiving is not only for those who have, and enjoy, more each year. Thanksgiving is also, and perhaps most of all, for those who have less than before. It is often in having less that we become more aware of the blessings we enjoy, and more thankful to God.

In this respect, our 2005 Thanksgiving is more like the first Thanksgiving in 1621 than many other Thanksgivings we have had. The colonists in 1621 gave thanks to God in the midst of struggle. We too give thanks to God in the midst of struggle. Struggle can make us more grateful perhaps because it can challenge us to grow in wisdom. May all of us be wise enough to give thanks to God who continually blesses us and walks with us.

A message of thanks to the most valuable assets of The Peoples Bank

THE PEOPLES BANK

To: The employees and officers of The Peoples Bank
From: The Non-Employee Members of the Board of Directors of The Peoples Bank

We want to publicly acknowledge and salute you, the employees and officers of The Peoples Bank, for your outstanding efforts in restoring service to customers in the aftermath of the devastation left behind by Hurricane Katrina. You are truly heroes. We are proud of each and every one of you.

Only hours after the storm had passed our Gulf Coast, before the winds had completely died down, you were implementing our bank's emergency response plan, despite the fact that many of you had lost your homes and all your possessions.

- Within 48 hours, you had computer operations staffed and functional.
- Within 72 hours, you had operations and backroom departments fully functional.
- Within 72 hours, you opened three branches to serve customers.
- Exactly one week after Katrina destroyed our Gulf Coast, you opened seven more branches.

Since those first dark days, you have demonstrated outstanding courage and admirable dedication in a number of ways that have helped The Peoples Bank start the rebuilding process on the Gulf Coast.

- You have staffed flood-damaged buildings to assist customers in retrieving their valuables from ruined safe deposit boxes, some of which had to be moved to other locations to be accessed.
- You have helped clean out flooded buildings to preserve customer records and bank documents.
- You have prepared temporary facilities to serve customers where the damage to the permanent branch was simply too great to reopen.

As a result, The Peoples Bank has resumed normal operations, serving customers in all our communities across the Gulf Coast, from Bay St. Louis to Gautier. This could not have been accomplished without heroic effort on your part.

As a board, we have long recognized your devotion to The Peoples Bank. Now we want to make your friends, your colleagues and the entire Mississippi Gulf Coast aware of our admiration for your efforts.

You, the employees and officers, are indeed the most valuable assets this bank could be so fortunate to have. We salute you.

Most of all, on behalf of the customers you serve and the community you build, we thank you.

Minor -- Barbour's plan

Bush Administration--and Congress--are already strapped with a monstrous federal budget deficit and waging an increasingly unpopular war in Iraq that is costing $2 billion a week, as well as the lives of hundreds of American military.

Meanwhile, the $63 billion Congress appropriated early-on for Katrina recovery has been quickly spent and thousands of Mississippians and Louisianans who lost homes, belongings, jobs or businesses in the storm now are existing in dire circumstances, desperately waiting for help from Washington.

It is bitter irony that while Congress goes on Thanksgiving break and President Bush junkets to South America and even Mongolia before heading back to his Crawford, TX ranch, thousands of hurricane-battered Americans in the Gulf South of the richest nation in world history were left facing a grim holiday season.

Barbour was riding an approval high for his perceived able handling of the state response to Katrina. But now, as cold weather arrives and hundreds of his constituents shiver in FEMA-provided tents or thin trailers they now call "home," his popularity could sharply plummet if he fails to get Bush, his good buddy in the White House, to deliver on billions of dollars in federal aid.

Some here believe Republican Barbour had political motives in cutting to $33 billion the recovery money he will seek for his state in Washington, so as to look better than Louisiana's Democratic Gov.

Kathleen Blanco who is asking $250 billion for her state. (Louisiana's Republican Senator, David Vitter, incidentally, agrees with Blanco.)

Mississippi's economists, meantime, are trying to assess the impact Katrina has had so far on state revenues and economic activity, and to look ahead at what effect expenditure of federal funds and insurance payments will have when rebuilding infrastructure and housing does get cranked up next year.

Senior Economist Marianne Hill of the state College Board's Research Center warns in a new issue of "Economic Review" that the expected massive inflow of recovery dollars could in the short-run create something of a false economic boom that will not be sustainable.

As an example, she forecasts that within a few months per capita incomes on the Coast will be higher than before the storm hit due to the inflow of capital. But losses from the hurricane, her study adds, will likely mean that the poverty rate on the Coast will rise.

The hurricane left many jobless, resulting in 51,000 new claims being filed for unemployment, as many as in the 12 prior months.

In December, a final report is expected from the governor's 42-member commission on recovery, rehabilitation and renewal. It conducted a five-day renewal forum in October that brought together over 100 professionals with expertise in environmental protection and a host of other areas, including social issues, to develop a "broad vision for a better Gulf Coast and South Mississippi."

What comes out of that report could be a radically different looking Gulf Coast. Camelot on the Coast? We'll see.

burden the diocese faces if it chooses to rebuild all the schools, shouldn't the people that compose the school families have a say? Bishop Rodi scheduled listening sessions with the parishioners of the damaged churches; and I'm sure everyone joins me in thanking him for his time and consideration. With regard to St. Clare, he actually listened to the parishioners, and we are extremely grateful. Why can't those same listening sessions be held for the schools? I'm sure they are time consuming, but a very important avenue for our voices to be heard.

Please, parents write or call Bishop Rodi to let him know how you feel about your children's schools. We at St. Clare want to stay at St. Clare, and not be forced to consolidate with other schools. If we wanted our children to attend the other Catholic schools, then we would have enrolled them there in the first place. This is NOT a slam on any of the other Catholic schools in the Bay-Waveland area, as

I'm sure they are great. However, we chose St. Clare Catholic School for its educational philosophy, nurturing environment, awesome teachers, and incredible principal. Oh, and let us not forget the beautiful green space and beach that the children get to enjoy, as well as the fact that many parents attended St. Clare themselves.

What will happen to Waveland if St. Clare School is not rebuilt? Many of those employed by the school will likely have to move to other communities for employment, and many parents may also move to be closer to their children's new school. This does not sound hopeful for Waveland who is trying desperately to get businesses and residents to return and begin the long process of recovery and regrowth. So please, Waveland city officials contact Bishop Rodi also, and let him know how much Waveland needs St. Clare Catholic School.

Attorney General makes arrest for home repair fraud

Investigations by the Attorney General's Office have resulted in the arrest of John Johnston, doing business as ReRoofing America, at his home in Carriere, Mississippi, on charges of Home Repair Fraud and violations of the Consumer Protection Act.

Johnston's November 16th arrest by Attorney General Investigator Bob Payne, Jr. involved several county sheriff's departments working together, including the Jackson County Sheriff's Office, Pearl River County Sheriff's Office and Harrison County Sheriff's Office. Johnston's business, ReRoofing America, is located at 2044 East Pass Road in Gulfport.

This arrest stems from a complaint investigated by the Consumer Protection Division in which Johnston entered into a roofing contract with a consumer. After receiving the contract amount of $10,000, he failed to perform any work and failed to refund the consumer's money.

General Hood said, "I hope this sends the message to other dishonest contractors trying to fraud Katrina victims that we are coming for them. Home repair fraud will not be tolerated in Mississippi."

21st annual Asgard Toy Run

Waveland -- building permits

Board members unanimously adopted the ordinance, which — like those adopted by Hancock County and the city of Bay St. Louis — sets the freeboard height at four feet above the Base Flood Elevation (BFE) in special flood hazard areas A and V.

In other words, Fire Chief David Garcia said, "If right now you're at 13 feet, you have to go to 17 feet. ... Adopting FEMA's recommendations would have raised a lot of these homes anywhere from 11 to 19 feet. We want to do something to get people building."

Again, Garcia stressed, that only applies to those in the special flood hazard areas A and V whose homes were more than 50 percent damaged.

"If you currently live in a flood zone and have flood insurance, you qualify for Increased Cost of Compliance funds," Garcia said.

Since the city is under a state of emergency, the new ordinance went into effect immediately, Longo said, rather than having to wait the normally-required 30 days, so people can start applying for building permits now.

However, he said, "You need building plans, drainage plans—you need all of the things that you would normally need to build."

The board got another round of applause Tuesday evening when it shot down a proposal by Karl Heitzman and John Scafidi to pursue using Emerald Lake Subdivision as a FEMA mobile home site for up to 18 months.

Heitzman said the site would not be for the usual FEMA R/V-style trailers, but for 14x60 mobile homes for the handicapped and larger families. He said plans were to house 46 mobile homes on the six-acre site.

Neighbors of the site were vehemently opposed to the plan, fearing that it would turn into a permanent trailer park despite the board's intent to keep it temporary.

They also questioned how much money Heitzman and Scafidi stood to make from the deal; and whether it would house only local people or New Orleans refugees.

Board members voted unanimously to deny the proposal.

After the vote, Carl Gales, a contractor for Bechtel, the company which places and sets up the trailers for FEMA, said "At six o'clock tomorrow, we'll start doing more travel trailers. Maybe it will be (a site) that you will like. We'll keep doing the best we can for you."

In other action Tuesday: • Longo said Habitat for Humanity International has waived the low-income requirements and adopted the entire city of Waveland: "They will actually build back to what your blueprint was." Applications are available at the Waveland City Hall mobile home complex at Coleman and Central.

• Longo said he had met earlier in the day with members of the South Mississippi Regional Planning Commission, which he said had committed to helping re-employ Waveland residents who had lost their jobs due to the storm.

"They will hire and pay the first six-months' salary or $12,000, whichever comes first, to find jobs for our people," Longo said. "This is clerical, it's laborers, it's everything."

Anyone who took one of the jobs could still go back to collecting unemployment once the job had finished. The program does not include insurance benefits, he said, but "it's a job, and every little bit helps."

"Not only will it get folks jobs," Longo said, "it will get jobs that will help us get things done in the city."

Applications for the program are available at Waveland City Hall.

Thanksgiving in the Lakeshore community.

"After the Katrina thing, everybody up north felt so helpless," Carolyn Costantino of the West Congregational Church in Haverhill, Ma., said yesterday at the Lakeshore Baptist Church site. "We were like, 'What are we to do? What are we to do? We were just led by God to (come down here) and put our money where our mouth is. This is a three-year commitment.'"

Costantino said the West Congregational Church "originally adopted Lakeshore Baptist Church, but the church's effort is helping the community, so we adopted the community."

Several Massachusetts-area businesses donated food, clothing, tools and appliances to the group, and a trucking company offered the free use of two 18-wheelers to ship it down, along with about 50 replacement freezers, refrigerators and ovens for storm victims.

West Congregational prepared all the food for a massive Thanksgiving feast in advance, froze it, and shipped it to Lakeshore, along with the gas stoves to heat everything back up. They were joined by two other church groups from Florida to aid in Lakeshore Baptist's efforts. Costantino said they expect to feed at least 200 people today.

"It's a good way to spend Thanksgiving," Dale Brown, West Congregational's pastor, said Tuesday. "It makes you appreciate having four walls and a roof."

"You have an awesome group of people here," Costantino said. "I feels like home. It's going to be hard to leave. ... These are our families for the rest of our lives."

The feast begins at 1 p.m. today, Brown said, and is not limited to the Lakeshore Baptist Church Congregation: "If you're a human being, you're invited to eat."

MSU prof's roof tests could help rebuilding

SEA COAST ECHO

A Mississippi State engineering professor is using giant magnets to simulate the uplift impact of hurricane-force winds on flat roofs and hopes his research findings will help guide rebuilding efforts along the storm-crushed Gulf Coast.

Veteran civil engineering professor Ralph Sinno is completing a report titled "Guidelines and Performance Specifications for Reconstruction of the Mississippi Gulf Coast." When completed in early December, it will be distributed as a white paper to state and local officials.

"We want to provide information to building code authorities that will allow them to modify, create and design new buildings that will be stronger," said the wind-load expert, who completed his undergraduate work at the University of Florida.

"We're looking at how buildings should be reconstructed, where shelters should be placed and how to revitalize the Gulf Coast, from Hattiesburg all the way to the seashore," explained Sinno, who is assisted in the project by 15 of his senior students.

Working over the past 11 years with the aid of some $600,000 in research funding, Sinno has developed an innovative electromagnetic testing system to investigate hurricane-level uplift wind forces on roofs. Previously, such tests were conducted only in wind tunnels with 1:50 scaled models.

"What we're doing at MSU is real-life, real-size, full-scale testing," said Sinno, a Lebanon native who earned a doctorate in civil engineering from Texas A&M University in 1968. "Simulation in time and space of high-velocity wind forces on full-scale roofs has never been done before anywhere in the world."

FEMA extends short-term lodging program

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) have announced an extension of the funding for FEMA's short-term lodging program to Dec. 15. The extension, requested by the state of Mississippi, was granted by FEMA to provide an additional two weeks for evacuees staying in Mississippi hotels to find alternative housing in a state where housing options have been severely diminished by Hurricane Katrina.

Following today's announcement, Federal Coordinating Officer Nick Russo said, "We understand the challenges of finding viable housing alternatives in Mississippi and are providing this two-week extension to give evacuees additional time to find that housing."

The two-week extension provision was announced by FEMA last week and made available to the states of Mississippi and Louisiana, if needed, in transitioning evacuees currently staying in hotels and motels to longer-term housing. This provision applies only to these two designated states where housing alternatives were destroyed.

"Unfortunately, individuals and families who were impacted by Hurricane Katrina must understand that housing on the Gulf Coast of Mississippi will not return to its pre-storm state for quite some time and it is time for displaced families to locate suitable housing solutions in other locations, including those out of state," said Russo. "FEMA, MEMA and our local partners offer several programs to assist in relocation and it is our number one goal to find long-term housing for Mississippi's displaced population."

"This extension will allow us the opportunity to assist Mississippi residents make an orderly progression toward more permanent housing," said Robert Latham, Mississippi state coordinating officer. Evacuees who need assistance in finding alternative housing can call FEMA's housing referral service at 1-880-762-8740 (TTY 1-800-462-7585). The service is operational daily from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. CST and will help evacuees in finding housing across the country.

Residents displaced by the hurricanes have several options for long-term housing:

- For travel trailers or mobile homes, call the FEMA A Teleregistration/Helpline (24 hours a day) 1-800-621-FEMA (3362) (TTY 1-800-462-7585)
- For apartments, call FEMA's housing locator service (7 a.m. - 8 p.m. CST) 1-800-762-8740

(TTY 1-800-462-7585)

- For those who were in housing subsidized by one of the Housing and Urban Development (HUD) programs or were homeless before the storm call: Katrina Disaster Housing Assistance Program 1-866-373-9509, TTY 1-800-877-8339 General inquiries 1-800-955-2232, TTY 1-800-877-8339. FEMA urges all evacuees to call the Helpline (1-800-621-FEMA or TTY 1-800-462-7585) or visit a nearby Disaster Recovery Center to learn more about alternative housing options and referral services. Representatives from the state, voluntary organizations and FEMA are visiting hotels and motels to discuss future housing options.

Nearly three months after Hurricane Katrina, hurricane evacuees occupy nearly 52,000 hotel rooms across the country; approximately 2,700 are in Mississippi.

President Bush continues 100 percent funding for disaster recovery projects

SEA COAST ECHO

President Bush today made additional disaster assistance available to Mississippi by extending 100 percent federal funding for some debris removal and certain emergency protective measures.

Debris removal and emergency protective measures, including those involving direct federal assistance, will be reimbursed at 100 percent of the costs incurred through the new deadline of Jan. 15. These projects fall under the Public Assistance program of the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency.

"We've made great progress in helping Mississippi with debris removal operations. With these additional funds, we can continue providing temporary structures and equipment for schools and funding programs to repair or replace infrastructure damaged or destroyed by Hurricane Katrina," said Nick Russo, federal coordinating officer for the disaster in Mississippi.

Federal funding for projects reimbursed through FEMA's Public Assistance program will be authorized at 90 percent of total eligible costs beginning Jan. 16. Normally, the federal share of disaster recovery for Public Assistance is 75 percent. This share has been increased because of the scope of this disaster.

"This is good news," said Robert Latham, executive director of the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency. "This extension of federal funding gives us more time to remove debris from approved property in Mississippi."

The President has extended the funding deadline twice before. Under the Aug. 29 major disaster declaration issued for Mississippi for Hurricane Katrina, federal funding for these Public Assistance projects was set at 100 percent of the total eligible costs for 60 days. The President amended his declaration on Oct. 22 and extended the period for 100 percent federal funding through Nov. 26. With this extension, the period for 100 percent funding runs through Jan. 16.

Former students send help to SSC

Two Saint Stanislaus resident students, forced to return to their homes following the destructive wrath of Hurricane Katrina, have undertaken the task of raising money in their hometowns to help the school rebuild. Both young men were present in Bay Saint Louis during the hurricane and witnessed its devastation first hand.

Freshman Christopher McNeill started at Saint Stanislaus in August, 2004. He was one of forty-six resident students — students whose homes were too far away for them to safely evacuate to — who were present on the SSC campus when Katrina came ashore. The day after the storm, these remaining students boarded a charter bus sent in from Mobile, Alabama to begin the journey that would reunite them with their families.

Back home in Ohio, Christopher told his story to friends and family, and to the students at Sacred Heart Elementary School in Wadsworth, Ohio. Inspired by Christopher's story and his experience, the grade school students raised over $600 for Saint Stanislaus. Christopher's father, Dan McNeill, wrote, "The Principal was amazed at the amount because they are a small school." Two of Christopher's sisters (he is the oldest of ten children) raised additional money at a bake sale.

Sophomore Enrique Martinez was just starting his third year as an SSC resident student when Katrina struck. When he returned to his home in San Marino, California, Enrique began thinking of ways he could help his school rebuild. He and his mother made beef empanadas, which were then sold with the proceeds going to Saint Stanislaus. Along with cash donations, Enrique's project raised over $3,000 for the school.

SSC freshman Christopher McNeill examines jellyfish swimming in the water covered floor of the Brother Peter Gymnasium on the afternoon of August 29, 2005.

SSC sophomore Enrique Martinez played soccer as well as football and baseball during his freshman year at Saint Stanislaus. The resident student returned to his home in San Marino, California following Hurricane Katrina.

In his letter accompanying the donation, Enrique wrote: "I can't wait to go back and start school again. I also want to thank you for all the great things St. Stanislaus has given me and how my experience there has changed my life. The day the bus came to pick us up after the hurricane, all I wanted to do was to stay and help out, but that was not possible. Instead I did this; it was the only way I could help from such a long distance."

Saint Stanislaus College and Our Lady Academy are continuing a tradition of Catholic education in Bay Saint Louis that began over 150 years ago.

PRCC Wildcats win 18th MACJC title

SEA COAST ECHO
Third-ranked Pearl River Community College avenged its only loss of the 2005 football season with a 25-19 victory over Mississippi Gulf Coast to claim a third-straight MACJC state championship here Saturday in A.L. May Stadium.

The title marked an unprecedented 18th state title for the defending NJCAA champion Wildcats, who ended their season at 8-1 overall with no hopes of a bowl berth to defend its national title.

On the other hand, seventh-ranked Gulf Coast, who handed the Wildcats their only loss of the season with a 55-47 setback Oct. 20, landed a bowl bid to take on No. 5 Northeastern Oklahoma A&M Dec. 3 in the Dalton Defenders Bowl in Coffeyville, Kan.

Pearl River was left out of the 2005 bowl mix when Arizona's top-ranked and undefeated Glendale CC (10-0), hosts of Dec. 3's Valley of the Sun Bowl in Phoenix, tagged Michigan's second-ranked Grand Rapids (9-1) as its opponent before the MACJC completed its season which was extended one week due to a delayed start up after Hurricane Katrina took her devastating swath across the southeastern United States Aug. 29.

The championship victory marked the final game of PRCC All-American quarterback Jimmy Oliver's brilliant, record-setting career. Oliver, who passed for 354 yards and two touchdowns and ran for two other scores in Saturday's title bout; finished his two-year stint at The River with an astounding 7,181 total offensive yards, including 6,662 through the air. The redshirt sophomore from East Marion guided the Wildcats to an incredible 20-1 record in his 21 starts.

Oliver zipped a seven-yard pass to Demetrius Byrd to cap a 15-play, 65-yard drive on the game's opening possession for the game's first score. Oliver went six-for-nine in the drive, while converting a fourth and two at the Bulldogs' 13 with a four-yard keeper three snaps before hitting Byrd for the TD. Scott Hillery's PAT was blocked, but PRCC led 6-0 with 6:39 left in the opening quarter.

Pearl River's ensuing on-side kick was recovered by Gulf Coast at its own 39 and quarterback Eric Walden engineered an seven-play, 50-yard drive to the PRCC 11 where Trey Read booted a 28-yard field goal with 3:24 left in the first period to cut the Wildcats' lead to 6-3.

PRCC drove to the MGCCC 23 on its next possession, but a bad snap on the last play of the quarter shoved things back to the 35 where Oliver threw incomplete on a fourth-and-23 on the first play of the second period and Gulf Coast took over.

After a five-yard penalty for a false start, the Bulldogs retaliated with a 70-yard scoring pass from Walden to running back Dantrelle Savage on first down to give the Bulldogs the lead. Read's PAT made it 10-6 with 14:30 left in the half.

The 'Dogs recovered their ensuing on-side kick at their own 46 and drove to the Wildcat 44 before punting it away.

Starting at his own 12, Oliver went to work connecting on five-of-five passes for 68 yards to the Gulf Coast 15-yard line, then a 13-yard Bulldog penalty pushed things to the two where he kept for the score.

Steven Kulikowski was good on his extra point boot and PRCC regained the lead at 13-10 with 10:56 left in the half.

After an exchange of punts, Pearl River padded its lead with an 11-play scoring drive that started at its own 11 with Oliver scoring on another two-yard keeper with 49 seconds left in the half to make it 19-10 when Kulikowski's PAT attempt sailed wide. Oliver ran three times in the drive for 15 yards, while connecting on five of eight passes for the remaining 68 yards.

But the first-half fireworks weren't quite over, as the hosts drove 65 yards in four plays to the Wildcat four to set up Read's 21-yard field goal as time expired. Walden threw to Savage for six yards on the first snap of the drive, then zeroed in on Tony Burks for back-to-back 11 and 44-yard completions to set up Read's boot to make it 19-13.

Pearl River went up 25-13 in four plays on its second possession of the third period when Oliver hit Byrd with a 58-yard TD pass. Oliver also zipped two completions to Larry Freeman for 22 yards and one to J.J. Smith for 16 to set up his scoring toss before throwing incomplete on the two-point conversion try. With 7:59 left in the third period, the Wildcats led 25-13.

Pearl River finished the game with 391 total yards (354 pass, 37 rush) to Gulf Coast's 382 (301 pass, 81 rush), while Oliver had a 26-of-43 effort through the air to Walden's 28-of-34 (two interceptions).

SSC & OLA split with HCHS in soccer; Lady Tigers down Resurrection

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The St. Stanislaus and Our Lady Academy soccer teams hosted the Harrison Central Red Rebels on Tuesday, November 22nd 'in between the walls' in Bay St. Louis.

The Rocks (0-2) lost 1-0 to Harrison Central. The Red Rebels scored late in the first half following a hands ball penalty on the Rocks. The Rock defense played solid all game but couldn't get a break on the offensive end.

SSC head coach Stace McRaney commented, "The kids played very hard tonight. We missed some chances to score tonight but we played very well on defense. Britt Breland, Cameron Bosely and Brad Lingsch all played well on offense while Nick Bishop, Brennan Marlowe, Matt Milner, Clark Seal and Dylan Drake held strong on defense. We just couldn't get a break on offense."

SSC dropped their first game to Biloxi 3-0 last week.

OLA improved to 2-1 on the season with their 3-1 victory over the Lady Red Rebels. Megan Bagwell, Mischa Tice and Kaitlyn Boswell all scored for the Crescents.

In basketball action, the Lady Tigers of Bay High defeated Resurrection 57-15 on November 17th on the road. Kaneisha Montgomery led all scorers with 30 points. On Saturday, November 19th the Lady Tigers narrowly lost to St. John 35-31. Kaneisha Montgomery scored 12 points followed by Sara Favre with 10 points.

Also on November 17th the Lady Hawks of Hancock (3-2) were nipped by Moss Point 50-49. Randa Lee and Jordyn Meranto each scored 15 points followed by Emma Craft with 10 points.

The Hancock boys team (1-3) fell to Long Beach (1-0) on November 18th 70-43. Drew Malley led Hancock with 20 points while former SSC player Owen McNally led Long Beach with 24 points.

SSC opens their basketball season on December 9th against Picayune.

Volunteers help Gaits to Success

When she saw the destruction caused by Hurricane Katrina, Pam Liverman wanted to find some way to help. As Director of the Center for Education and Therapeutic Riding (CENTER) in New Castle County, Delaware, she has an intimate knowledge of horse farms and stables. She knew some farms along the Gulf Coast had to have been damaged in the storm. For days she tried to find a farm in need of assistance only to hear she was calling an area too far north or too far east.

Eventually, she was able to get a message through to Carolyn Rhodes, the director of Gaits to Success. In addition to downed trees, Gaits to Success lost the roof of their stable, several gates, and sustained heavy damage to their arena. Two horses also received minor injuries.

Liverman organized a group of 25 volunteers to make the 22 hour trip south to help rebuild. The Delaware volunteers are repairing the roof and mounting platform and building a new tractor shed. The group also brought some replacement gates.

The volunteers will stay for a few days until the work is done.

Gaits hopes to reopen in January.

Gaits to Success, a private non-profit center, is a member of the North American Riding for the Handicapped Association (NARHA). Therapeutic Riding is recognized by the American Occupational Therapy Assoc. and the American Physical Therapy Assoc. It's been found to help people with a number of disabilities and emotional disorders. Horseback riding stimulates unused muscles to build muscle tone. Riding increases joint mobility and improves balance and coordination. Riders also experience reduced spasticity.

Gaits is run primarily by volunteers who donate their time and talents to work with the children, horses and the facility. The program is supported by the Brett Favre Foundation, the Combined Federal Campaign, the Anthony Darte Foundation, small corporate grants, community organizations and individual contributions.

For more information about the Gaits to Success therapeutic riding program or to inquire about volunteer opportunities, please contact Carolyn Rhodes, 255-5368 or Beth Benvenuti, 586-9389.

From the Mayor's Office

Dear Citizens, Volunteers and Guests,

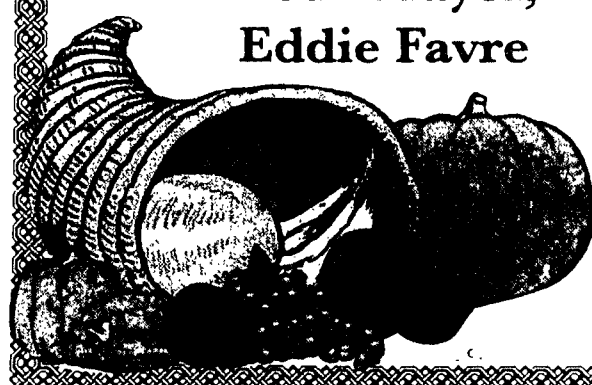

It is the appropriate time to truly understand giving thanks, and while we may not have a house we have a home that lives up to its namesake, Bay Saint Louis, A Place Apart, a place where we have each other and a nation of new friends.

Bay Saint Louis is your city, with a tattered face, but a heart that beats strong with fierce determination to rebuild and recover and we appreciate beyond measure the blessings that we have received since August 29.

Hand in hand, together, we will become all that we are supposed to be. Thank you for being a citizen of this great little city. Thank you for volunteering to help us in our time of need.

Please celebrate this Thanksgiving holiday with peace, joy and gratitude.

Your Mayor,
Eddie Favre
